Residential Treatment

Adults who are struggling with a substance use disorder and co-occurring mental health concerns can benefit from a stay in our residential treatment program. Clients receive round-the-clock support through a variety of evidence-based interventions, including individual, group, and family therapy sessions.

Residential treatment offers clients the chance to step away from their daily lives and focus solely on their health and their journey toward recovery.

Outpatient Treatment

Our intensive outpatient program (IOP) offers a structured, ongoing connection with comprehensive clinical services while also providing adults with ample opportunities to practice their newly developed recovery skills in a real-world environment. Clients can step down to the IOP after completing our residential program, or they may enter treatment with us directly at the outpatient level.

Clients in our IOP typically attend treatment three days per week, with each treatment day consisting of three hours of services. IOP sessions address a wide range of essential topics related to the psychological, social, spiritual, and biological dimensions of recovery.

How to Make a Referral

Burkwood Treatment Center welcomes referrals from many different sources, including hospitals, therapists, and physicians. To make a referral, contact our admissions office. They will set up a pre-admissions screening for the prospective client and work to verify insurance/benefits information.

Please fax Chemical Health Assessments to (715) 381-0156.
